NATIONAL PROSPERITY.

An Interesting Dialogue Between a Farmer and a Statistician.
Farmer—I see by President Harrison's Thanksgiving proclamation that the country has enjoyed a high degree of prosperity and he recommends that the people return thanks for their manifold blessings.
Statistician—That's an old chestnut, to begot the people and make them believe they are prosperous when such is far from the case. Do you suppose that 20,000 families, who were forcibly ejected from the tenement houses of New York City on account of their inability to pay rent, think that it has been a prosperous year?
F.—I presume that this was merely a local hardship which the President thought out but a small figure in the general average. He was merely speaking for the country as a whole. The Republican orators of the campaign just closed also claimed that the country was exceedingly prosperous.
S.—If 10,000 mercantile failures; its farms and homes mortgaged for $2,000,000,000; its railways bonded for $5,000,000,000; nearly $3,000,000,000 of public debts; $10,000,000,000 of floating debts; banking liabilities of $5,000,000,000, and Europe holding $5,000,000,000 of American securities is any evidence of prosperity then the United States can lay some claim to prosperity.
F.—I know the farmers were generally mortgaged by land hope of redemption, but supposed they were thankful because the bondholders did not foreclose the mortgages. I see by the last census that the per capita valuation of property amounts to $1,000.
S.—It is true if the property of the United States was equally distributed it would give each inhabitant, according to the dotitious valuation of the census, $1,000 with each, but it is not distributed that way. That 1,000 people own more than half the wealth under present conditions, but they can make conditions that will practically confiscate 99 per cent of all the remaining property and the only thing that can prevent it if the millionaires so demand is a revolution.
F.—You have just made an assertion that I don't exactly comprehend. How can 31,000 people, who own half of the wealth, confiscate 99 per cent of the remaining property which is held by 65,000,000 people?
S.—This is very easy of explanation. The wealth which is held by these 31,000 people is largely in the shape of bonds and mortgages and other securities. They represent promises to pay a sum which in the aggregate amounts to more than $20,000,000,000. These debts cannot be paid in anything except legal tender. As the amount of legal tender that is available for these debts does not exceed $1,000,000,000 it will be seen that the bondholders are in a position to name the price which the property will be sold for in place of its bringing what the United States estimates as its value, for the bondholders have all the country, State and National machinery back of them to enforce their legal demands. No one could bid or buy except those possessed of legal tender and as the bondholders in the first round would become possessors of the entire amount of the legal tender it will readily be seen that they could name the price which the mortgaged property could be sold for.
F.—I see by the papers that the Rothschilds are getting possession of all the large businesses of the Northeast and are going to establish headquarters in New York City. A good many people think it will bring more European capital to this country and make times more prosperous.
S.—That is another delusion. The European bondholders are simply taking possession of our industries in settlement of interest on their bonds. They are not bringing any money this way. Our specie goes to them. The Rothschilds are very anxious to establish an immense banking house in New York. Their thirst for interest bearing securities knows no limit. They are also anxious to be near the financial department at Washington so as to have it under their complete control. It would also be a great saving in sending cipher cables to their agents. If the Rothschilds were located in New York Sherman and Harter could confer with them and the financial policy of the United States could more cheaply be controlled.
F.—It looks as if the situation was becoming desperate. I guess the President was thinking of the bondholders when he wrote his Thanksgiving proclamation.
FARMER.
Voting for President and Vice President.
Geo. C. C. Powning, of Washoe county, Hon. Thomas Wren, of Eureka, and Hon. M. S. Bonfield, of Humboldt county, the successful Presidential Electors in Nevada, met at the Secretary of State's office in this city at 10 o'clock A. M. to-day and cast their votes as required by law for President and Vice President of the United States. The vote was unanimous for the Silver party nominees, Jas. B. Weaver of Iowa, for President, and Jas. G. Field of Virginia, for Vice President, and M. S. Bonfield was chosen as messenger to convey the vote to Washington and deposit same.
In honor of the result in Nevada, the Silver party has had six handsome solid silver ballot souvenirs—three of each—made. They are about 2 1/2 x 1 1/2 inches in dimensions and bear the inscription: "For President, James B. Weaver, of Iowa. Electoral Ballot of Nevada, cast January 9, 1893." and "For Vice President, James G. Field, of Virginia. Electoral Vote of Nevada, cast January 9, 1893." One each will be sent to Weaver and Field, and the other four to the Chairman of the State Silver party. Very appropriate.—Tribune
In the recent campaign the Silver State offered a bounty to the county which would give the largest percentage of its vote to the Silver party candidates. Eureka county won the banner, and the Silver State says it has been received at Winnemucca. It will be presented at Carson at the time the Silver party victory is celebrated by the election of Hon. William M. Stewart to the United States Senate.

THE GRAND JURY.

Two Indictments and Several Recommendations Submitted.
The Grand Jury was in session yesterday, having met at the call of Foreman C. T. Bender. B. F. Leete was appointed Secretary pro tem. Two indictments were submitted to the Court, one against Wm. Griggs for burglary and the other against P. Perla for felony.
The following report was made to the Court:
Your Grand Jury recommends as follows:
WHEREAS, The law making it a misdemeanor to sell liquors to minors is not obeyed or properly enforced in the town of Reno, and the peace officers find great difficulty in suppressing the evil. Therefore, Resolved, That this Grand Jury respectfully requests the Board of County Commissioners to pass an ordinance making it a misdemeanor for boys or girls under lawful age to visit places where liquor is sold. In case of conviction, the offense to be punished by fine or imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding sixty days.
WHEREAS, It is now within the power of the Board of County Commissioners, Auditor and Treasurer to immediately allow, audit and pay claims against the county, although objection to the legality or validity of such claims have been made before such Board and officers, and
WHEREAS, Experience has shown that any proceeding taken after the claim has been paid is useless. Therefore be it Resolved, By the Grand Jury of Washoe county that the members of the Legislature from this county be, and they are hereby urgently requested, to secure the passage of a law which will have the effect of suspending for ten days all actions by the said Board or either of said officers in reference to any claim presented to them for allowance or payment whenever the District Attorney or any taxpayer shall present to them written objection to the allowance or paying of such claim or bill.
B. F. LEETE, Secretary pro tem.
MRS. GEN. TOM THUMB.
What the S. F. Examiner Says of the Little Lady and Her Litigious Company.
"Mrs. Gen. Tom Thumb, now Countess Magri, her husband, Count Magri, his brother, Baron Ernesto Magri, and the Misses Lucy and Sarah Adame, have been giving a series of unique performances during the week at Irving Hall. They will be continued another week, and now that the public schools are closed for the holidays the young people will have a chance to see the little people in an entertainment that is at once amusing and interesting.
"The program is made up of songs, recitations and specialties, and concludes with a one-act piece written especially for the diminutive players by the late Charles Gayler, called 'The Countess'.
"Mrs. Tom Thumb is one of the brightest little women imaginable, and if one thinks these litigations are not as clever as the big folks—and clever than many actors of pretensions—she should see them perform.
"The little folks speak distinctly, and though their voices are small, they are penetrating, and they are distinctly heard in any part of the house.
"The entertainment is quite as amusing apparently to the grown people as it is to the children.
"The Count, and the Baron, his brother, are born actors, and act with the animation and spirit characteristic of Italians.
"The introduction of Mrs. Tom Thumb, as she is still called, to the audience by her husband, Count Magri, in a neat speech, is an account of the Count's Italian accent, expressive gestures and earnest manner, very amusing. The Countess thereupon sings a solo, after which her husband comes onto the stage again, takes her hand and escorts her to the wings in the gravest and most courtly manner.—S. F. Examiner, Dec 27.
The company of litigians will give a matinee here to-morrow afternoon, the performance to commence at 3:30 in order to give the school children an opportunity to be present. For scale of prices see the advertisement in another column.

A CLUMSY FAKE.

The Salt Lake Herald says: "No clumser fake, no more outrageous swindle was ever perpetrated upon the public than the 'petrified man' humbug, that some unscrupulous and mercenary rascals, aided and abetted by a reckless newspaper in this city, have sought to thrust upon the people." The "man" was manufactured in Idaho, having been cast in sections and joined together with glue. The joints were covered with a thin layer of cement. Plaster paris, lime and sand are the component parts of the "petrified man." This was established by Professor Talmage, who made a chemical analysis of the "freak" in his possession.

Deserves Attention.

If you have money to invest in Real estate, either in large or small amounts, the Reno Real Estate and Investment Company offers most particular inducements to you. By investing in its shares of stock you participate in its investments which are governed by its able and experienced Board of Trustees, consisting of Mr. C. T. Bender, Mr. Sol Levy, Mr. C. C. Powning, Mr. Geo. F. Tarritt and Mr. A. G. Fletcher. The principle object of the company is to purchase and improve centrally located business property in the city of Reno. The company is incorporated with a capital of $100,000, divided into 20,000 shares of the par value of five dollars each, and from its already large list of share holders there is every reason to believe that it is destined to become one of the most flourishing companies in the State. Of its 20,000 shares there have been 12,000 sold since August 1st. Its shares are sold upon the monthly installment plan of ten cents per share, installments to range over a period of fifty months. In this way persons of moderate means are enabled to combine and participate in investments that usually only fall to the lot of the fortunate capitalist. Mr. F. M. Lee, the Secretary of the company, will be pleased to furnish any desired information.

Justice Court.

Justice Lien's attention was occupied yesterday in listening to evidence in the case of Barron vs. Anderson and Matson. The plaintiff sued defendants for $127 claimed to be due as wages in herding their sheep, and defendants set up a counter claim that defendant, through carelessness, allowed fifteen of their sheep to be killed by being run over by a train of cars and drowning in water. C. A. Jones appeared as counsel for plaintiff and Judge Ben. Orrler looked after the defendants interest. The Justice took the case under advisement.
